Dear [Child's Name],

Every day, I wake up with you on my mind and a heart that aches with love and longing. Though fate—and the unjust hands of a government system—tore us apart, my love for you has only grown stronger, burning brighter with every memory we share. I still see the joyful gleam in your eyes, hear the echo of your laughter, and feel the warmth of your smile, all of which remind me of the unbreakable bond that no force can ever sever.

Within these photographs lie the stolen moments of our togetherness—snapshots of a time when our family was whole and our love was unchallenged by a world that sought to take you away. Each image is a testament to our past and a beacon of hope for a future where our separation will be but a distant memory. I have guarded these memories with all my heart, believing they will someday help guide you back to where you belong.

Please understand that no system, however powerful or cold, can ever erase the deep connection between us. You were never unwanted or unloved; you are the living embodiment of our family's love and resilience. The narrative imposed by those who seek to rewrite our story is false—our love is the unassailable truth, a flame that will continue to shine even in the darkest hours of separation.

I stand with you in spirit, ready to listen and support you through every trial until the day we are reunited. Carry these words with you as a constant reminder that you are forever cherished, and that no matter the distance, our hearts remain intertwined, defiant against any force that tries to diminish our love.

With all my love,
